

Linguistics

107 Syntax and Grammar

Not offered 2018-19

4 credits

This course begins with a grounding in descriptive English syntax and grammar. A brief consideration of historical linguistics will allow students to analyze English syntax within the context of related Indo-European languages. The final section of the course applies close stylistic analysis to texts and utterances from a variety of discourse communities. May be elected as Composition 107.

300 Special Topics in Linguistics

1-4 credits