WCTS is aware of this problem, and unfortunately this type of interference with wifi when people use microwave ovens and printers, may be impossible to eliminate. There is no universal "one solution for every situation." Please note, if you hire a student for work that is not college-related, it is your responsibility to ensure that current social distancing guidelines are communicated and followed during their work.

Departmental funding for student work can be supplemented if your department has depleted its student payroll budget this year and you have a continued need for student work that fits into one of two parameters: 1) remote work that a student can do away from campus, or 2) essential work that can be done with proper social distancing training provided by the student's supervisor.
