Virtual Undergraduate Conference Speaks on Engaging Discourse

Meaning is a topic ignored widely enough that the 23rd Annual Whitman College Undergraduate Conference, which took place entirely online this year, was called “Disscoursing.” Headline speakers included Ocean Born, who engaged with the concept of Blackness, and Dr. Ayesha Spann, who talked about the psychology of borders in Latinx studies. These speakers engaged with BIPOC representation in the theatre and identity.

Surveillance Testing

Surveillance testing notifications are sent each Friday afternoon for the coming week, and students are required to take the test before they can access campus buildings. If you fail to take an assigned surveillance test, we don't have a process for making-up the test.

Vaccination Appointments Open for Tomorrow

The Walla Walla County Department of Health has appointments available for the Pzer COVID-19 vaccine. Visit their website to sign up online.

ASWC is coordinating ride-shares for students who need transportation to get to their COVID-19 vaccination appointment. Students who have not yet started the vaccination process can get their first dose tomorrow morning.

Stress Relief for Caregivers

Taking care of others can have a major impact on your life, your mood, and your health. Mindful meditation is a great way to help manage the stress of your job and personal life. Join Whitman’s Employee Assistance Program (EAP), Cascade Centers. This session will provide a series of simple steps to reduce your stress and avoid burnout, including relaxation techniques, sleep hygiene practices, and building a system of support.

Make a make-up test if you miss your COVID-19 surveillance testing?

Q: How can I take a make-up test if I miss my COVID-19 surveillance testing?

A: If you fail to take an assigned surveillance test, we don't have a process for making-up the test.
