Join: Whitman Teaches the Movement

Whitman Teaches the Movement is a student-led, volunteer-based program that teaches lessons about civil rights, diversity and equity to local K-12 students in the Walla Walla Valley. Every year, their student volunteers get paired and trained on how to teach their lesson before they and their partner go teach in a real classroom.

This year is going to look a little different as it is going to be virtual, but it is going to be just as fun and engaging. Student volunteers will still be teaching lessons with a partner, but it will be over Zoom. These lessons are only 30 minutes and you get to do them from the comfort of your own home!

Trainings will start until next semester, with lessons beginning mid-February. If you are interested in learning more about WTTM and the lessons they teach, or if you would like to be a volunteer, you can contact whitmantoday@whitman.edu.
