Yukiko Shigeto
Akira R. Takemoto

The courses in Japanese language and literature will provide an opportunity for an in-depth study of modern Japanese language and acquiring literary and cultural knowledge of Japan. Students will gain both oral and written language proficiency and literary analysis skills.

Learning Goals

- Language Competency: Through sequentially structured language courses and a wide range of courses in Japanese culture, students will develop the linguistic skills necessary to speak, listen, read, and write in a range of social contexts. Advanced language courses prepare students to take an N2 level of the Japanese Language Proficiency Test.
- Culture: Through the exploration of literary and cultural histories of Japan, students will be able to articulate an appreciation and understanding of how modern cultural products of Japan, ranging from film, anime, and books, are fostered on the rich cultural tradition of the past.
- Critical Thinking: Through intense study of the Japanese language, students will gain a critical distance from their first language and naturalized frame of reference. This distance will enable them to practice ethical comparativism in engaging with cultures different from their own.
- Research Experience: Students will be able to use Japanese-language sources for the purpose of writing analyses of literary and cultural topics.

Placement in language courses: Students with previous language experience in Japanese must take a placement test in order to enroll. Contact Professor Shigeto to arrange a meeting.

Courses taken P-D-F may not be used to satisfy course and credit requirements for the major or minor after the major or minor has been declared.

Prerequisite for 306: Japanese 305 or consent of instructor.* Students who have not taken Japanese at Whitman previously are required to take an oral and written placement examination for entrance.

400 Introduction to Modern Japanese Literature and Culture
Not offered 2022-23 4 credits

This course introduces students to selected works of Japanese literature from the 20th century. The course will cover a wide range of prose fiction including autobiographical fiction, realist and fantastic novels as well as works in popular literature genres, including detective and satirical fiction. We will explore the ambivalent ways in which Japanese writers incorporated Western literary theories and concepts into the domestic literary tradition in their efforts to create a “modern Japanese literature.” In addition to the impact of industrialization on human perception and writers’ narrative modes, we will consider how modern printing technologies changed reading practices. Taught in English. Students electing to take Japanese 400 will complete some reading, writing, and discussion assignments in Japanese. May be elected as Global Literature 222.

405, 406 Fourth-Year Japanese
Fall-405
Shigeto 4 credits

The course will begin with a program to develop proficiency in the four communication skills of speaking, listening, reading, and writing as well as cultural understanding. Approximately 250 kanji compounds will be introduced, and kanji introduced in the first, second, and third-year classes will be reviewed. The focus of the program will be to help students gain a broader background in Japanese language and culture by reading literary texts and essays, and to explore the challenges of translating those texts into English. Students also will be expected to express themselves orally without having to rely on heavily prefabricated phrases. May be repeated for credit. Prerequisite for 405: Japanese 306 or consent of instructor. Prerequisite for 406: Japanese 405 or consent of instructor.

425 Exploring Human-Nonhuman Dynamics in Japanese Literature
Spring Shigeto 4 credits
This course introduces representative works in Japanese literature that address human-nonhuman relationships. We will explore how each work presents a cosmology of its own, released from strict nature-culture and subject-object divisions. While paying attention to specific anthropogenic environmental changes that the writers are responding to, we will also consider how their perspectives and attunement to surrounding presences- including the dead- might enhance our capacity to imagine a life with others on an imperiled planet. In addition to literary texts, some films and anime will be included. This course counts for Environmental Humanities credit. May be elected as Global Literature 225. Prerequisite: Japanese 306.

438 Undoing the Japanese National Narrative through Literature and Film
Not offered 2022-23 4 credits
In this course we focus on the literary works and films of Japan’s post-WWII period from the mid-1940s through the 1970s and explore the ways in which writers and filmmakers responded to the social and cultural transformations brought about by war, defeat, occupation, and recovery. The main questions to be addressed include: How did writers and filmmakers engage with the question of war responsibility in and through their works? What does it mean to “take responsibility for war”? How do their works, at both levels of form and content, critique and undo the official national narrative that largely coincided with the modernization theory put forth in the early 1960s? How long does the “postwar” last? Taught in English. May be elected as Global Literature 338. Students enrolled in this course (Japanese 438) will do writing and some of the reading assignments in Japanese.

491, 492 Independent Study in Japanese Language
Fall, Spring Staff 1-4 credits
This class is designed for students who have completed three years of college-level Japanese and who desire to pursue further study in Japanese language, literature, or culture. The instructor will choose texts on topics in which the student shows interest; students will read and prepare translations of selected readings and write a critical introductory essay. Prerequisites: Japanese 306 or equivalent.

491 Introduction to Japanese Calligraphy
Fall, Spring Takemoto 1-4 credits
This class will introduce students to fundamental techniques that will enhance a student’s ability first to see and then to copy and produce hiragana, katakana, and kanji using a variety of writing implements. Students currently enrolled in a Japanese language class are encouraged to enhance their understanding of Japanese by learning how the writing system developed and how calligraphy reflects important aesthetic ideas in Japanese art and culture. Each lesson is one-half hour per week for the duration of the semester. Prerequisite: consent of instructor. P-D-F not allowed.

491 Chanoyu (The Art of Serving and Receiving Tea)
Fall, Spring Takemoto 1-4 credits
This class is designed for students interested in learning about the tradition of serving and receiving tea (matcha). Although the class will briefly introduce the history of tea in Japan, students should know that this is a performance class. Student will learn how to sit, stand, walk, and perform movements that will allow them to serve a bowl of tea to guests. All lessons will be in the Chikurakken, the Whitman College Tea Room. Students will sign up for individual private lessons and attend group lessons on Sunday afternoons. Prerequisite: consent of instructor. P-D-F not allowed. Fee: $50.00 each semester.
498 Honors Thesis
Fall, Spring
Shigeto
4 credits

Designed to further independent research leading to the preparation of an undergraduate honors thesis in Japanese. Required of and limited to senior honors candidates in Japanese major. Prerequisite: admission to honors candidacy.

The program in Japanese also includes courses in English. These classes are listed in the Art History and Visual Culture Studies and Global Literatures sections of the catalog.
